

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

THE AMERICAN ACADEMY IN ROME

THE AMERICAN ACADEMY IN ROME, begun in 1894 as the American School of Architecture in Rome, was founded in 1897 for Students of Architecture, Painting, and Sculpture. In 1912, it united with the AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CLASSICAL STUDIES IN ROME, retaining its title and organizing the two branches known as the SCHOOL OF FINE ARTS and the SCHOOL OF CLASSICAL STUDIES.

THE SCHOOL OF FINE ARTS; GORHAM P. STEVENS, Professor in Charge. Fellowships in Architecture, Sculpture, and Painting are awarded annually for a term of three years, and in Landscape Architecture every third year for a term of three years. The stipend of each fellowship is $1000.

THE SCHOOL OF CLASSICAL STUDIES; after October 1, Professor G. L. HENDRICKSON, Professor in Charge. A Fellowship for one year with a stipend of $1000, is offered annually; a Fellowship for a term of two years, with the same annual stipend, biennially. All awards are made on competitions open to all unmarried citizens of the United States who comply with the regulations of the Academy.

For further information, address the Secretary,

C. GRANT LA FARGE,
101 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y.

AMERICAN SCHOOL AT ATHENS

THE AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CLASSICAL STUDIES AT ATHENS was founded by the Archaeological Institute of America in 1881. In 1886 it was organized as a corporation under the laws of the State of Massachusetts. It is in great measure supported by the co-operation of leading American Universities and Colleges. No charge for tuition is made to graduates of the supporting institutions. Two Fellowships, the School Fellowship, with a stipend of $800, and the Institute Fellowship, with a stipend of $1000, are awarded on examination. Owing to the war the usual examinations were not held in 1918 or 1919, and no awards for the year 1919-1920 will be made. It is expected that the normal work of the School will be resumed in the autumn of 1919. The library of the School contains nearly 6000 carefully selected volumes.

The Director of the School is Mr. B. H. HILL. Professor H. B. DEWING of Princeton University will probably hold the annual professorship at the School in 1919-1920, and Professor CHARLES FORSTER SMITH of the University of Wisconsin in 1920-1921.

For further information, address the Acting Chairman of the Managing Committee,

Professor EDWARD DELAVAN PERRY,
Columbia University, New York, N. Y.

AMERICAN SCHOOL IN JERUSALEM

THE AMERICAN SCHOOL OF ORIENTAL RESEARCH IN JERUSALEM was founded in 1900, and is affiliated with the Archaeological Institute of America. It is supported by a number of American Universities and Theological Seminaries and by private subscriptions. The School offers to properly qualified persons excellent opportunities for the study of the geography, archaeology, and history of Syria, and of the Semitic languages. No charge for tuition is made to graduates of the supporting institutions; other students are required to pay a fee of $25 per annum. A Fellowship, with a stipend of $800, is awarded annually on examination. The Director of the School is Professor WILLIAM H. WORRELL, of Hartford Theological Seminary. Professor ALBERT T. CLAY, of Yale University, is Professor of Mesopotamian Archaeology. It is expected that the School will reopen this year. Professor WILLIAM J. HINKE, of Auburn Theological Seminary, is Annual Professor-elect of the Old Testament.

For further information, address the Chairman of the Managing Committee,

Professor JAMES A. MONTGOMERY,
6806 Green St., Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa.

SCHOOL OF AMERICAN RESEARCH

THE SCHOOL OF AMERICAN ARCHAEOLOGY was founded by the Archaeological Institute of America in 1907 to conduct the researches of the Institute in the American field, direct expeditions of the branch Societies, and afford opportunities for field work and training. In 1917 it became the SCHOOL OF AMERICAN RESEARCH, with its own charter and with enlarged functions, but without change in its affiliation with the Institute.

The seat of the School is Santa Fé, New Mexico, a particularly favored region for archaeological, ethnological, and historical study. Here it maintains offices, laboratories, library, studios, a museum of archaeology, and an art gallery.

The School has a branch in California in connection with the San Diego Museum, which is under the administration of the Director of the School. Here are maintained the anthropological laboratories and library. The collections in physical anthropology are unsurpassed. The Museum also includes Central American collections, a building devoted to Indian arts, and an art gallery.

Students are admitted on satisfying the Director as to qualifications for the work proposed. Fellowships are awarded as funds are secured for their maintenance. The School co-operates in research with universities and scientific organizations, both home and foreign, and invites correspondence with reference to such collaboration.

For further information, address the Director,

EDGAR L. HEWETT,
Santa Fé, N. M.